

P R E S S R E L E A S E

RAISING MONEY FOR FELIX FUND
THE UK BOMB DISPOSAL CHARITY

In what could be their most dangerous mission yet, two soldiers from the Explosive Ordnance Division fought off 800 romance readers at THE BRITISH BOOK AFFAIR, Marriot Hotel, Grosvenor Square, London on 18 April 2015.

A brave volunteer! With Felix Fund CEO
Melanie Moughton and author
Jane Harvey-Berrick

Into dangerous territory

With Australian author Tina Gephart whose husband served with EOD USAF

One slip and it could all be over

Fans with pom-poms

Staying safe and out of arms' reach

Romance fans raised hundreds of pounds for Felix Fund – and the brave volunteer soldiers experience life as rock stars – and survived the day.

EOD or Explosive Ordnance Disposal is the British Army's specialist unit responsible for counter terrorist bomb disposal. It's one of the most dangerous jobs in the world ... but two uniformed volunteers are about to take on 800 readers of romance novels. It could be their most dangerous mission yet. █

Felix Fund supports bomb disposal experts and their families. They fund therapeutic breaks for bomb disposal teams and other welfare and rehabilitation facilities for EOD units. They also provide hardship grants for individual members of 'the bomb disposal family' in need.

Further information

Felix Fund: www.felixfund.org.uk Melanie Moughton (CEO) melanie@felixfund.org.uk 07713 752901

Jane Harvey-Berrick: jharveyberrick@gmail.com www.janeharveyberrick.com 07780 454426

The British Book Affair: www.thebookaffair.com TheBritishBookAffair@Gmail.com #BBA15